ESSENCE · THE IDEA · PILLARS · AUDIENCE · PERSONALITY

BRAND ESSENCE

Two parts good. One part sweet.

WHAT IT IS

A sparkling lemon basil soda with 6 g of fiber from three plants and only 3 g of sugar. A treat that takes care of you.

WHY IT FEELS DIFFERENT

You taste the lemon first and smell the basil right after. Then you turn the can around and read 2:1. The pleasure and the proof come in the same can.

WHERE IT LIVES

The 4pm pause, the long lunch, dinner with friends. Anywhere you reach for something good, and choose something good for you.

THE BRAND IDEA

Show your ratio.

Every can holds 6 g of fiber and 3 g of sugar. That ratio, 2:1, leads every piece of FORM work, and the label on the back says the same.

The number earns the first can. The lemon and basil earn the second.

WHAT FORM STANDS ON

Three pillars, held in balance.

FORM never asks you to choose between enjoying a soda and looking after yourself. These three pillars keep both in every piece of work.

1

PROOF · THE LEAD PILLAR

The Ratio

2:1 in every ad, on every shelf sign and on the website. The label on the back says the same.

2

OCCASION

The Table

The desk at 4pm, the long lunch, dinner with friends. FORM is made to be poured into a glass and left out on the table.

3

HABIT

The Regulars

Real people who make FORM part of their day and share it honestly, with no paid stunts.

TARGET AUDIENCE

They enjoy life, and look after it.

City professionals, 25 to 38, who care about food, design and how they feel. They read labels, notice packaging, and have cut back on sugar without giving up a treat.

MINDSET	Looking after yourself is part of living well, never a sacrifice.
MOMENTS	The 4pm slump, a working lunch, dinner with friends, the office fridge.
CHANNELS	Instagram, TikTok, design and food newsletters, specialty grocers, cafés.
SECONDARY	Cafés, boutique gyms, hotels and concept retailers that want a soda that suits their space.

ALSO IN REACH

The considered host

Has friends over often and wants a soda worth pouring into a good glass.

The fibermaxxer

Gen Z and young millennials tracking fiber, who want an easy 6 g with a real number behind it.

Kitchen people

Influence group. Chefs and bartenders who respect real basil and drink it on shift.

BRAND PERSONALITY

FORM IS	FORM IS NOT
Composed and confident	~~Loud or hyped~~
Sensorial and botanical	~~Clinical or pharmaceutical~~
Warm and self-assured	~~Jokey or meme-driven~~
Grown-up and culinary	~~Kiddie, candy or nostalgic~~
Knowledgeable, plain-spoken	~~Preachy about health~~

IF FORM WERE A PERSON

Someone who keeps fresh basil on the windowsill, reads the label before buying, and never lectures anyone about it.

WORDMARK · MISUSE · RATIO MARK · COLOR · TYPE · PHOTOGRAPHY · IMAGE SYSTEM

PRIMARY · CLEAR SPACE X = HEIGHT OF THE O

MIN. 24 PX ON SCREEN · 12 MM IN PRINT

THE WORDMARK

The stacked wordmark, FO over RM, set in a high-contrast display serif. It is the only logo: never retype or redraw it, always place the original file.

The Stack

The 2 x 2 letter block. On the can the letters run larger than the surface and crop at the edges. Layouts repeat this: oversized letters that bleed off the frame.

The Cut

Content is framed in clean geometric crops, as if seen through the counter of the O.

The Composition

Ingredients and can arranged as balanced still lifes: stacking, leaning, counterweights. A literal take on “form”.

WORDMARK MISUSE

Never redraw or adjust it. These are the six ways it most often goes wrong.

× Don’t stretch or squash it.

× Don’t recolor it.

× Don’t retype it in another font.

× Don’t rotate it.

× Don’t outline it.

× Don’t place it on a busy photo.

THE RATIO MARK

Our second logo is a number.

SET IN	2:1 in DM Serif Display. FIBER : SUGAR beneath in Instrument Sans Medium, tracked +8%.
ON THE CAN	No mark on the can. The real numbers live on the back-panel Nutrition Facts: 6 g fiber, 3 g sugar.
IN LAYOUTS	Oversized and bleeding off the frame, or small as a proof stamp next to the can. One ratio per layout. Shelf talkers, social, out-of-home.
THE RULE	Always the real label number. A flavor that cannot hit 2:1 prints its true ratio, or does not launch.

PHOTOGRAPHY AND ART DIRECTION

A still life in Mediterranean afternoon light.

Calm, tactile and slightly surreal.

LIGHT	Soft daylight from upper left, long gentle shadows, no hard flash
SETS	Sage or stone seamless backdrops, travertine, limestone, linen, pale wood
PROPS	Only the flavor's real ingredients: halved lemons, fresh basil sprigs, water, ice, glass
CAN SURFACE	Matte with fine condensation beads; the logo always readable and undistorted
COMPOSITION	Sculptural balance, stacked or leaning objects, generous negative space
MACRO	Bubbles rising, basil leaf veins, lemon zest oil spray, droplets on aluminum
PEOPLE	Real, relaxed, 25 to 38, natural skin, linen and knitwear; caught mid-moment, the can simply in hand
AVOID	Neon, glossy plastic CGI, cluttered tables, gym clichés, artificial colors

PEOPLE AND MOMENTS

From the first run to the last pour.

FORM goes where the day goes. The people and the places change. The light and the can stay the same.

MOMENTS	The run, the café, the 4pm break, the park, the swim, the bar. Everyday routines, photographed as they happen
CASTING	Real adults, 25 to 40, alone or in twos and threes; mid-laugh or mid-thought, never posing to camera
LIGHT	Low, warm sun from the side; golden hour whenever the moment allows
THE CAN	Held loosely or set beside a glass, label readable, always the sharpest thing in frame
SPORTSWEAR	Soft sage, cream and white. Show the cool-down: towel on the shoulder, can in hand
THE POUR	A straight-sided highball, clear ice, lemon and basil; no other bottles in frame
AVOID	Gym interiors, sweat, party clichés, logos of other brands, crowds

Voice and rules

TONE OF VOICE · VISUAL PRINCIPLES · CLAIM GUARDRAILS

TONE OF VOICE

A treat that takes care of you.

This is the feeling behind every line. FORM talks about taste first, proves it with numbers, and never preaches. Calm, specific, quietly pleased with the choice you made.

Taste first.

Say what it tastes like before what it does: bright lemon, fresh basil, fine cold bubbles.

Prove it in numbers.

6 g, three plants, 2:1. Show 2:1 with “fiber : sugar” beside it until people know it by heart.

Care, never cure.

FORM looks after you. It never heals, fixes or detoxes, and it never talks about other brands.

Fewer words.

Headlines in four to eight words. No stacked adjectives, no mirrored couplets.

THE FOUR LINES	WHERE THEY LIVE
HERO Two parts good. One part sweet.	Campaign headline, website hero, film opening
TASTE Bright lemon, fresh basil, fine cold bubbles.	Front of can, social, the film’s taste beat
PROOF 6 g of fiber from three plants. Twice as much fiber as sugar.	Back of can, product page, the film’s proof beat
SIGN-OFF 2:1 · In good form. FIBER : SUGAR	Every piece, every end card
NEVER SAY	~~Heals, cures, detoxes · guilt-free, clean · rival brands~~

KEY VISUAL PRINCIPLES

Eight rules for every frame.

1
The can is the hero.

Same can, same proportions, same logo in every asset. One product master image is the reference for all generations.

2
Show the ratio.

Every campaign asset carries 2:1 once: as an oversized graphic, a proof stamp next to the can, or an end super.

3
80 / 10 / 10 color.

Green and cream dominate, neutrals support, lemon accents.

4
Real ingredients only.

Lemon and basil, nothing invented.

5
Sculptural composition.

Balance, stacking and negative space over clutter.

6
One light.

Soft daylight from upper left across all stills and video.

7
Bleed the letters.

Oversized type crops off the frame, like the can.

8
Texture is proof.

Bubbles, droplets and leaf veins show freshness instead of claims.

CLAIM GUARDRAILS

The ratio is label data, not a health claim.

1 Keep the ratio as label data.
Anyone can check it, so we never stretch it.

2 Fiber "feeds the good bacteria you already have".
Never heal, cure or fix, and never imply a can replaces dietary fiber.

3 We talk about FORM, never about other brands.
No comparisons in ads. The label speaks for itself.

4 Go gently.
New to fiber? Start with one can a day. The three fibers are blended to be easy on you.

SECTION IV

Hero product

LEMON BASIL · FLAVOR, FIBER, FIZZ · INTENDED CUSTOMER

HERO PRODUCT

Lemon Basil Prebiotic Soda

Bright lemon, fresh basil and fine cold bubbles, with 6 g of fiber from three plants and only 3 g of sugar. A 330 ml slim can, matte to the touch. Three technologies in one sip: Flavor, Fiber, Fizz.

FORMAT	330 ml slim aluminum can, matte soft-touch Deep Basil finish, cream wordmark
PER CAN	35 kcal, 3 g sugar, 6 g prebiotic fiber: a 2:1 fiber-to-sugar ratio
SWEETENED WITH	Organic cane sugar and monk fruit; no artificial sweeteners
KEY INGREDIENTS	Cold-pressed lemon juice, cold-distilled basil, apple cider vinegar, chicory root inulin, acacia fiber, green banana fiber
CARBONATION	Fine-bead, about 2.8 volumes CO2
CAN	Infinitely recyclable aluminum, BPA-NI lining

2:1
FIBER : SUGAR

THE THREE TECHNOLOGIES

Flavor, Fiber, Fizz.

How a soda gets to be good for you and still taste like a treat. The backbone of the product innovation film.

Flavor

01 COLD-DISTILLED BASIL

Basil turns brown and bitter with heat. FORM vacuum-distills fresh basil at under 30 °C, capturing its aromatic oils so the soda tastes like a leaf torn a moment ago.

Fiber

02 THE TRI-FIBER BLEND

Three plant fibers ferment at different speeds: chicory inulin early, acacia mid-way, green banana fiber late. The good bacteria you already have get a steady supply, from start to finish.

Fizz

03 FINE-BEAD CARBONATION

Chilled, slow carbonation makes smaller bubbles. They feel soft and silky, and they lift the basil aroma to your nose with every sip.

INTENDED CUSTOMER

Maya, 31, product designer.

Drinks less, cooks more, reads labels and notices design. She wants something good to reach for at the 4pm slump and at dinner with friends. She trusts a number she can check, and FORM is the can she leaves on her desk on purpose.

DIFFERENTIATORS

1. A 2:1 fiber-to-sugar ratio, shown in every ad and checkable on the label
2. A grown-up flavor: real lemon and fresh basil
3. Real basil captured cold, not “natural flavor”
4. Three plant fibers, blended to work gently and steadily
5. A design-led can people leave out on the desk

Fictional product. Specs and claims are illustrative for this brand exercise.
